

Native-American heritage to be spotlighted at the museums of the state of Delaware during September 2016

Updated: Sept. 13, 2016

(DOVER, Del.—Aug. 17, 2016)—The Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs will be sponsoring 24 special events during the month of September 2016 at the museums of the state of Delaware. Six of the programs will explore the First State's rich Native-American heritage and culture. A full schedule is included below. Admission to all the listed events is free.

Lenape fancy dancer. The Lenape Indian Tribe of Delaware will be celebrating its heritage with drums, songs and dancing on Sept. 24, 2016.

According to Nena Todd, site supervisor for the state's downtown Dover museums, "September is a time for Native-American people to gather in their homelands. Traditionally, the coming of cooler weather provided a signal for native peoples to transition from a summer of hunting and fishing to more secure winter lodgings." This tradition of seasonal gathering continues in today's Native-American communities with September serving as a time when families come together to honor their heritage with events such as the "The First People of the First State: A Lenape Celebration of Heritage" that will be held on the Dover Green on Sept. 24, 2016.

Administered by the Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs, the five museums of the state of Delaware—the John Dickinson Plantation, the Johnson Victrola Museum, the New Castle Court House Museum, The Old State House and the Zwaanendael Museum—tell the story of the First State's contributions to the history and culture of the United States. Through tours, exhibits, school programs and hands-on activities, the museums shine a spotlight on Delaware's unique history and the diverse people who came to live there. The New Castle Court House Museum and the John Dickinson Plantation are partner sites of the First State National Historical Park. The Old State House is located on the Dover Green, another partner site of the park.
